Behaviour Policy (including policy on use of reasonable force)

Updated September 2017

Behaviour Management Policy

Golden Rule: We treat others how we would like to be treated

Our aim is that all of the children in the school should be able to behave in socially acceptable ways. The school strongly believes that good behaviour is an essential prerequisite for effective learning, and that managing every child's behaviour is the corporate responsibility of every member of staff within the school. Parents also have a crucial role to play, and should be kept informed when their child behaves well or behaves poorly. For the purpose of this policy, behaviour will be defined as: the way we act and respond to people and to situations we find ourselves in.

We expect the onus of the children's behaviour to be on the children and so give them every opportunity to be involved in managing their own behaviour. As a school we recognise that good behaviour is closely linked to lively and stimulating teaching and is supported by valued relationships between all members of the school community. Our behaviour management policy is structured so those children who meet the required standards of behaviour will reap the rewards.

To be socially acceptable, we believe that children should be able to:

- treat other children and adults with respect
- speak politely to other people
- have self-confidence and high self-esteem.
- behave in a manner that is conducive to both their learning and that of those around them.

To encourage this, the staff will:

- treat all children and adults with respect
- speak politely to all other people
- praise children's efforts and achievements as often as they can
- explain to children what they should have done or said when they get it wrong
- tell parents about their child's efforts and achievements
- tell parents if their children are getting it wrong
- avoid using critical or sarcastic language
- never act in a way that could be seen as being unfair
- set clear and consistent boundaries
- where possible see each day as a fresh start for every child
- always ask for every side of the story where there is a dispute or an accusation
- speak to a member of the leadership team if they are unsure of how to act.

We will not accept the following behaviour from children or adults:

- use of rude or unkind language
- hitting, kicking, biting or other such physical responses
- disruptive or distracting behaviour in class
- racist, sexist, homophobic or transphobic remarks
- stealing

Whole School Code

Behind all of our school codes, there is one fundamental philosophy that is expressed by St James' CE Junior School Golden Rule "We treat others as we would want to be treated". In addition to this golden rule, we have a Whole School Code (see Appendix 1).

Rewards

Children will receive shells from any member of staff for good behaviour. Each week the class with the most shells will be allowed on the bank at playtime on a Friday or 15 minutes extra playtime as a reward. Children also receive certificates and are included in the Golden Book. Each class will also have its own rewards for good behaviour, in addition to whole school rewards. The use of rewards rather than sanctions should be the focus of behaviour management throughout the school.

Sanctions

Children should be dealt with calmly and firmly referring to what the action is and why the action is being taken. The sanction should “fit” the offence. It generally has two steps. The first step is to stop the misbehaviour. The second step is to provide an action that recalls children to the rules, reinstates the limits, and teaches alternative behaviours.

Adults set clear and consistent boundaries and there should always be a focus on positive relationships in the classroom.

Teachers should avoid raising the profile of children who are behaving inappropriately as this often leads to an escalation of poor behaviour. If behaviour in class is consistently inappropriate, it will be recorded in a class behaviour book at the discretion of the class teacher.

It is imperative that any sanction is applied fairly and the consequences fully explained.

1. Non-verbal warning - a frown/look
2. Verbal Warning
3. Time-out (within classroom area & by Computer Suite window on playground for minor playtime incidents)
4. Removal of 5/10 minutes of playtime
5. Time-out (sent to a different class or a member of the Senior Leadership Team) – to be sent with an adult helper. The Teacher should speak to the parents at the end of the school day or as soon as possible.

NB : Repeated minor incidents or a sudden change in behaviour pattern will mean that the class teacher should arrange an informal meeting with parents at this stage

It is expected that the majority of children will not get beyond this stage. However, should poor behaviour continue then the following guidance should be followed:

Serious breaches of behaviour

A serious breach of behaviour includes the following:

- Hurting with intent to cause an injury (such as kicking, hitting, biting, hair pulling, scratching)
- Vandalism
- Racism or any other form of discrimination
- Aggressive use of unkind language (including swearing) to hurt another person.
- Theft

Serious breaches of the rules, once investigated, may also mean the child is sent to the deputy headteacher or other senior leader and these incidents will be logged and recorded in the school behaviour file. Parents will be informed and may be invited to a meeting with the headteacher; the child may be given an individual behaviour plan with clear & specific targets. The situation will be monitored closely and a PSP (Pastoral Support Programme) may be deemed necessary to help the child or they may be internally excluded. Persistent serious behaviour incidents may result in a fixed term exclusion. Extremely serious incidents may result in immediate exclusion, at the discretion of the Headteacher.

Discipline during lunch and playtimes

- Serious incidents, such as hitting or fighting will be recorded by the member of staff witnessing the incident in the behaviour log which is kept in the Head Teacher's office, and the class teacher will be informed.
- Minor incidents that are repeated (eg. wilful disobedience, and continued poor behaviour even after being spoken to) will be recorded in the class behaviour log - the class teacher must always be kept informed.
- When a minor offence has occurred, children will stand by the Computer Suite window on the playground or by the benches on the field for five minutes after which they will apologise for their behaviour.
- When a major offence has occurred or repeated minor incidents (after the child has been spoken to) the incident should be investigated and witnesses questioned by the staff present. If necessary the class teacher or a member of the leadership team will then be called. This will be recorded in the school behaviour log.
- All incidents recorded in the school behaviour log will mean that parents of all the children involved will be informed of the incident, as mentioned above.
- Members of staff must patrol all areas of the playground and be aware of "blind spots".
- All members of staff should award shells for good behaviour.

Discipline when on Educational Visits

- The visit leader will be responsible for making the other adults and children aware of the behaviour that is expected of them.
- A child will be moved to a different group or will have to remain with the visit leader if poor behaviour persists.
- Poor behaviour on a school trip may be passed on to the school's leadership team on the class's return to school.
- Children can be excluded from school trips or visits if their behaviour could or would be a danger to themselves or others.

The role of the leadership team

- To be consulted when children have been hurt by other children
- Where bullying has been identified.
- Where behaviour is consistently poor.
- When staff are unsure of the best course of action to take.
- When children have exhibited serious breaches of behaviour (see above).

Behaviour mentors

Staff always act as positive role models, and display appropriate behaviour at all times. However, if a child is having continual difficulties with their behaviour, the school may begin a diary for that child. A non-class based (e.g. teacher from another class) mentor may be appointed by the leadership team to develop a positive relationship with the child that is having difficulties, especially if the child's teacher feels that their positive relationship with that child is in jeopardy.

Behaviour records

Each class teacher should in some way keep a log of behaviour in their class. Repeated minor incidents should be recorded, as should more serious incidents. Class teachers should speak to parents about any behaviour that becomes a concern. Any discussion with parents should be noted.

The school has a behaviour log in the Headteacher's office. Any serious breaches or persistent breaches should be recorded here by the member of staff witnessing the incident. The Headteacher or Deputy Headteacher must be informed or in their absence the Assistant Headteacher. Parents must be informed, including any victim of poor behaviour.

The school also keeps a record of racist, homophobic, transphobic or bullying incidents. Again, these should be recorded by the member of staff witnessing or first investigating the incident. The Headteacher or Deputy Headteacher must be informed or in their absence the Assistant Headteacher. Parents must be informed, including any victim of poor behaviour.

If the parents or teachers would like more help with discipline

The first contact will be the school's leadership team.

Equal Opportunities

This policy will be applied in accordance with the single equality scheme and takes into account the school's legal responsibilities in respect of safeguarding and in respect of pupils with special educational needs as set out in the Equality Act (2010).

Complaints procedure

If pupils are not happy with the way they have been treated by any member of staff they should speak to the Deputy Headteacher or Assistant Headteacher who will investigate the matter, following the school's 'Managing Allegations Against Staff' procedures. However, any pupil who is found to have made a malicious allegation e.g. a made up claim, against a member of school staff will be disciplined in accordance with the seriousness of the allegation.

If parents are not happy with the way that they or their child is treated by any member of the staff or other parent at the school they should contact the Deputy Headteacher or Assistant Headteacher. If they are unhappy with the way their complaint is dealt with, parents can then contact the Headteacher or Chair of Governors.

Appendix 1 Whole School Code

- We keep our hands and our feet to ourselves.
- We walk around our school silently and keep to the left of corridors.
- We show respect and listen to everyone at our school.
- We do as we are asked by the adults at our school.
- We talk politely and respectfully to everyone at our school.
- We let grown ups go through doors/doorways before us.
- We keep the school neat and tidy.
- We respect our school buildings and equipment and the property of other children and adults.

Appendix 2

Policy on the use of reasonable force at St James' CE Junior School

The following is based on the following DFE guidance: Use of reasonable force, Advice for head teachers, staff and governing bodies July 2013

What is reasonable force?

1. The term 'reasonable force' covers the broad range of actions used by most teachers at some point in their career that involve a degree of physical contact with pupils.
2. Force is usually used either to control or restrain. This can range from guiding a pupil to safety by the arm through to more extreme circumstances such as breaking up a fight or where a student needs to be restrained to prevent violence or injury.
3. 'Reasonable in the circumstances' means using no more force than is needed.
4. As mentioned above, schools generally use force to control pupils and to restrain them. Control means either passive physical contact, such as standing between pupils or blocking a pupil's path, or active physical contact such as leading a pupil by the arm out of a classroom.
5. Restraint means to hold back physically or to bring a pupil under control. It is typically used in more extreme circumstances, for example when two pupils are fighting and refuse to separate without physical intervention.
6. School staff should always try to avoid acting in a way that might cause injury, but in extreme cases it may not always be possible to avoid injuring the pupil.

Who can use reasonable force?

All members of school staff have a legal power to use reasonable force. At St James' Junior school, only those staff who have had training will use reasonable force in the circumstances listed below, unless not using reasonable force would risk the safety of a child or member of staff.

This power applies to any member of staff at the school. It can also apply to people whom the headteacher has temporarily put in charge of pupils such as unpaid volunteers or parents accompanying students on a school organised visit.

When can reasonable force be used?

Reasonable force can be used to prevent pupils from hurting themselves or others, from damaging property, or from causing disorder. In any school, force is used for two main purposes – to control pupils or to restrain them. The decision on whether or not to physically intervene is down to the professional judgement of the staff member concerned and should always depend on the individual circumstances. The following list is not exhaustive but provides some examples of situations where reasonable force can and cannot be used.

St James' staff can use reasonable force to:

- remove disruptive children from the classroom where they have refused to follow an instruction to do so;
- prevent a pupil behaving in a way that disrupts a school event or a school trip or visit;
- prevent a pupil leaving the classroom or school site where allowing the pupil to leave would risk their safety or lead to behaviour that disrupts the behaviour of others;
- prevent a pupil from attacking a member of staff or another pupil, or to stop a fight in the playground; and
- restrain a pupil at risk of harming themselves through physical outbursts.

St James' staff cannot:

- use force as a punishment – it is always unlawful to use force as a punishment.

Power to search pupils without consent

In addition to the general power to use reasonable force described above, the headteacher and authorised staff can use such force as is reasonable given the circumstances to conduct a search for the following “prohibited items”:

3 Section 550ZB(5) of the Education Act 1996

- knives and weapons
- alcohol
- illegal drugs
- stolen items
- tobacco and cigarette papers
- fireworks
- pornographic images
- any article that has been or is likely to be used to commit an offence, cause personal injury or damage to property.

Force cannot be used to search for items banned under the school rules.

Communicating the school’s approach to the use of force

Any policy on the use of reasonable force should acknowledge their legal duty to make reasonable adjustments for disabled children and children with special educational needs (SEN). St James’ does not require parental consent to use force on a student. Government guidelines are clear that schools should not have a ‘no contact’ policy. There is a real risk that such a policy might place a member of staff in breach of their duty of care towards a pupil, or prevent them taking action needed to prevent a pupil causing harm.

Staff training

Key members of St James’ staff are trained to use force using the TeamTeach approach. Training is updated every three years. The names of staff who have had training are attached.

Telling parents when force has been used on their child

In the case of an incident where a child has had to be restrained and force has had to be used, this must be noted on the behaviour log. The parents of the child should also be informed that reasonable force has been used.

What happens if a parent or pupil complains when force is used on them?

All complaints about the use of force will be thoroughly, speedily and appropriately investigated. Where a member of staff has acted within the law – that is, they have used reasonable force in order to prevent injury, damage to property or disorder – this will provide a defence to any criminal prosecution or other civil or public law action. When a complaint is made the onus is on the person making the complaint to prove that his/her allegations are true – it is not for the member of staff to show that he/she has acted reasonably.

Suspension must not be an automatic response when a member of staff has been accused of using excessive force. The school will report the complaint to the Local Authority Designated Officer (LADO) and follow the procedures as set out in the guidance Managing Allegations Against Members of Staff.

If a decision is taken to suspend a teacher, the school should ensure that the teacher has access to a named contact who can provide support. The school’s governing body will always consider whether a teacher has acted within the law when reaching a decision on whether or not to take disciplinary action against the teacher. As employers, St James and KCC have a duty of care towards our employees. We will provide appropriate pastoral care to any member of staff who is subject to a formal allegation following a use of force incident.

What about other physical contact with pupils?

It is not illegal to touch a pupil. There are occasions when physical contact, other than reasonable force, with a pupil is proper and necessary. Examples of where touching a pupil might be proper or necessary:

- Holding the hand of the child at the front/back of the line when going to assembly or when walking together around the school;
- When comforting a distressed pupil;
- When a pupil is being congratulated or praised;
- To demonstrate how to use a musical instrument;
- To demonstrate exercises or techniques during PE lessons or sports coaching; and
- To give first aid.
